REPORT GUIDE

Plan, develop, validate.

WINDOW

Mar - Jul 2028 | Holi, Eid, summer weddings (long-range)

HOW TO USE

Read direction and palette, choose details suited to your customer, cost the range, then sample and validate. A forecast is a planning input, not a guarantee of demand.

INSIDE THIS REPORT

Four collection directions; 20 illustrated details with materials, construction and commercial notes; price architecture; retailer snapshots; three offer concepts; three documented collection stories; three innovation opportunities; development calendar and research sources.

IMAGE AND EVIDENCE KEY

New concept images are AI-generated original Forecut proposals. Existing reference images illustrate design vocabulary and are not evidence of future runway adoption. Documented observations and supplier claims are identified separately from Forecut recommendations.

PRICES AND OFFERS

LIFECYCLE LABELS

Rising and Peaking are qualitative editorial development assessments, not measured market shares. Watch is a conditional prototype direction. 2028 remains a scenario.

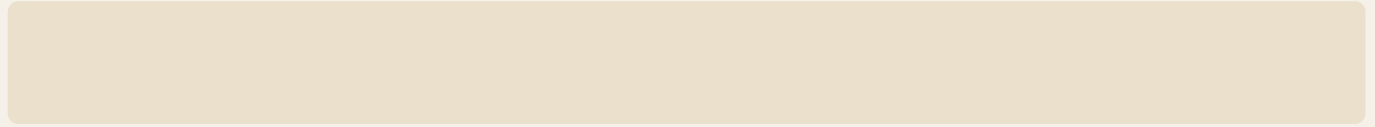

REVIEW DATE

15 October 2026. Prices, availability and supplier readiness may change; verify before purchase or production.

COLOUR DIRECTION

A working colour story.

Original Forecut palette. Approve physical lab dips; digital colours are not textile standards.

DIRECTION 1

Adaptable summer sets

Scenario: versatility becomes a stronger reason to buy if shoppers want fewer occasion-specific pieces. Airy and adjustable 2027 runway ideas are an early design input only.

PRODUCT OPPORTUNITY

Shirt-and-trouser sets; adjustable wrap kurtas; removable sleeve layers; compact travel capsules.

DEVELOPMENT ACTION

Prototype two ways to wear each piece without excess hardware. Fit-test adjustability at both ends of the size range.

COMMERCIAL ROLE

Run a small paid pilot before committing capacity. Compare conversion and repeat wear feedback with fixed styles.

Hermès | Women's spring-summer 2027

Première Vision | SS27 fabric decoding

DIRECTION 2

Repair is part of the product

Scenario: dependable aftercare helps distinguish premium craft. It depends on service economics and customer adoption, neither of which is established for 2028.

PRODUCT OPPORTUNITY

Replaceable buttons and ties; spare trim kits; accessible seams; detachable occasion panels.

DEVELOPMENT ACTION

Document repair steps and stock compatible components. Test that removable trims still survive normal wear.

COMMERCIAL ROLE

Cost the service separately before promising it. Measure repair use, lead time and margin impact in a pilot.

FDCI | Rimzim Dadu, India Couture Week 2026

Textile Exchange | Materials Benchmark Insights and Trends 2026

DIRECTION 3

Craft with a clear origin

Scenario: customers reward specific provenance over broad craft language. Local making is an identity cue, not automatic proof of lower impact.

PRODUCT OPPORTUNITY

Cluster-attributed handloom shirts; small-batch indigo sets; restrained crochet and embroidery accents.

DEVELOPMENT ACTION

Record fibre composition, supplier and process; check batch consistency and substantiate any environmental claim.

COMMERCIAL ROLE

Test product descriptions that explain maker and technique. Validate willingness to pay rather than assuming a premium.

ANOKHI | Summer 2026, Kambaya

FDCI | Margn, Circular Design Challenge

Textile Exchange | Materials Benchmark Insights and Trends 2026

DIRECTION 4

Soft structure for daily dressing

Scenario: summer tailoring stays relaxed while becoming more purposeful. Build recognisable shapes with better finishing instead of adding novelty to every style.

PRODUCT OPPORTUNITY

Unstructured overshirts; fluid sarees; straight-leg trousers; breathable waistcoats.

DEVELOPMENT ACTION

Check drape, collar recovery, seam stability and opacity. Build wear trials into development before range expansion.

COMMERCIAL ROLE

Retain a familiar core and trial one silhouette change at a time. Use actual return reasons to set revisions.
